

ROMAN FRONTIERS ECR NETWORK

Connecting archaeologists across the Roman frontier since 2023.

June, 2024

Here comes the sun... maybe?

BRAND NEW: ECR study rooms!

Do you hate studying and writing alone but can't get to a library? Do you want company and NOT want company at the same time?

The ECR has your back! Two new online study rooms are opening!

Join us on Zoom: evening GMT sessions starting in June, morning UTC sessions starting in July!

Three hours of light background music and open chat function for writing help or just sharing the joys and pains while you write, read, reference...

June sessions on the 3rd, 10th, 17th and 24th June, starting at 7:30pm British Summer Time (or 8:30pm European, 2:30pm East Coast NA, 11:30 am West Coast NA).

Join for free clicking the button below at the right date and time!

What's on the horizon?

Let's Meet Up This Summer!

There are some big conferences, with exciting research on the frontiers by our members, coming up this summer! If you're attending, we'd love a chance to meet you.

Here are our appointments:

- SGRP- 15th June
- EAA- 28th August to 31st August
- LIMES- 7th September to 14th September

The ECR network is approaching our first anniversary and it would be great to celebrate - as well as think about the future. Let us know if you'll be attending and we'll coordinate a chance to meet.

Don't forget to attend the ECR network session at EAA!

Let's Get Together!

Researcher of the Month

Cheyenne Eversole

Reach Cheyenne at ceversol@uwo.ca

Hi everyone! I am a PhD student at the University of Western Ontario, a site supervisor at Vindolanda, and the Public Communications Coordinator for the VALP project. My interests lie in 3D modeling and printing, Virtual Reality, and public archaeology. My research encompasses craftspeople (metalworking and leather), the Roman economy, slavery, socio-economic status, and household archaeology. I intend to use Vindolanda as a case study for my dissertation, which looks at the tools and manufacturing at the site. When not studying, I do participate in some hobbies! I am a crocheter, knitter, and sewer. I love to do anything creative, really. I also love a good video game, when I have the time.

Don't hesitate to reach out!

Award Opportunity

BREEZE & DOBSON AWARD

Did someone you know (including you) write something really exciting about the Hadrian's Wall frontier as part of their undergraduate or postgraduate work?

This year, the Breeze & Dobson Award will recognize excellent research related to Hadrian's Wall and the Roman frontier conducted within higher education between 1 June 2022 and 30 June 2024. Nominations and self-nominations are due 30 June, 2024.
